The 2025 Bank of America Study of Philanthropy, the 10th in a series of biennial reports on giving by wealthy households in the United States, offers practical insights into where, how and importantly why affluent Americans give and volunteer.

Join us to learn:

- How affluent Americans leverage sustainable investment strategies and assess the impact of their giving.
- Predictions about how the economy and other forces may drive donor behaviors and community impact throughout 2025 and beyond.
